

SPRING VACATION
IN SCHOOLS MAR. 23
Because of the large number of ab-senses every year during Holy week preceding Easter, it has been decided that the annual spring vacation in the public schools will start the Wednesday before Easter, March 25, and end on the day after usual Easter week, April 1. This year, the vacation caused by pupils being absent or excused to attend church the last part of Holy week, and while having vacation start in the middle of the week will cut off one week-end, it will avoid the confusion.

At a faculty meeting on Wednesday, March 25, 1937, the teachers voted 13 to 1 against having the vacation at all, thus getting out a week earlier in June, while 20 voted for a spring vacation.

SHERIFF DECLARES
CURFEW IS NEEDEDWhipple Says 9 P. M. Limit for Youths Might Reduce Crime.

"I believe in the old-fashioned cur-few law," said Sheriff Cash Whipple, when considering the philosophy of crime causes among youths in Rock county.

"The fact that I have taken more prisoners to the Rock county jail in the last month than during my entire term before has caused me to ponder about the cause," continued the sheriff. "There is something really terrible when so many minors are brought into court, and so many young men are sentenced for felonies."

"I had a Beloit youngster to take to the school at Waubesa recently.
His parents could not control him.
He would beg, steal or borrow money for the sake of seeing the movies.
He was out at all times of night.
He had been in the hospital and finally he was committed to the reformatory."

"Kids Don't Play Any More."
"When I asked the authorities about the cause of the delinquency of so many children, the boys now-days do not take much interest in old-fashioned sports, skating, baseball or the kid games they used to play around the neighborhood evenings until called home to stay home.
Now they want to go to the movies.
I believe that bad pictures influence them. The boys cannot see crime glashed on the screen without being influenced by it and it is a complete attention in their young minds."

Two Much Crime Now.
"The old curfew law is not such a bad law after all. Keeping the children home would help a lot and there is no reason why children under 16 years of age should be on the streets after 9 o'clock. They should be home or at least with their parents. The boys and girls would learn to respect the law. There are too many young men going to Green Bay and too many boys are being sent to reformatories."

Series of Important
Farm Demonstrations
Listed for This Week

Demonstration and meeting, Milton Junction, Wednesday afternoon and night.
Training demonstration and lecture on spraying in the town of Porter, Thursday afternoon.

Pruning and spraying demonstration, town of Center,
Friday afternoon.

Following the plan of County Agent R. T. Glasco and the Rock county Farm Bureau, a series of township demonstrations has been scheduled for this week. It is hoped to have these demonstrations on valuable farms in each township before the spring work begins.

One of the largest farm meetings will be held in Milton Junction Wednesday afternoon and evening. There is to be a pruning demonstration on the Rice farm, two miles from Milton in the afternoon. R. E. Kellogg, instructor in agriculture, and E. E.
Buell will be in charge.

F. R. Gifford, instructor in horticulture at the university, will have charge of the demonstration. There is to be an illustrated lecture in the Milton Junction high school Wednesday night.

Two Other Meetings.
The demonstration Thursday afternoon will be held in the town of D.
McCarthy, in the town of Porter.
County Agent R. T. Glasco will lecture. The Center meeting is to be held on the farm of J. F. Roberts, who has purchased a spraying outfit.
He has killed a majority of the fruit trees in Rock county. It is declared. They have been affected with bark growths and pruning, it is claimed, is the only remedy to make them profitable.

County Agent Glasco is planning for a drainage demonstration to be conducted by G. R. Tamm on the Abricht farm near Milton Junction on March 21. There is considerable drainage work to be done on Rock county farms and all farmers interested in such work are urged to attend. There will be surveying work and a discussion of plans for tiling and ditching.

It is hoped that at a later date a test of damage work by blizzards and dynamite can be arranged for Rock county.

Culver at Work.
C. E. Culver, recently re-elected secretary of the Rock county Farm Bureau, started work as a paid agent of the Bureau at the county office Monday. It is the present policy of the bureau to have its own expert commercial business, relieving the county agent of this work.

Secretary Culver has recently returned from St. Croix county, where he was instrumental in organizing the farm bureau there. All but three townships were united and more than 1,000 members secured.

Weave Own Wool.
"The farmers up there" have a novel system for handling their wool," said Mr. Culver. "They pooled their wool and not having a good market, they contracted with one of the woolen mills to take the total amount and weave it into cloth or garments the owners desired. The farmers then obtained pure wool clothes of the finest cloth I ever saw. The minute you put your hands on the cloth."

Some of the Rock county wool, which was pooled in July, 1920, has been sold. The low grades brought 35 cents a pound. The bulk of the pool, however, is still in storage in Chicago.

Work at Warehouse.
There are 40 people working at the Dale warehouse handling the tobacco crops pooled through the Rock county Tobacco association. There are 50 sorters working.

"Tobacco is much better than we expected," declared C. E. Culver, "there is far less low grade and short stuff than was at first expected."

Another Pool Formed.
Chippewa county farmers have formed a tobacco pool to improve the system of growing and selling this cash crop. The organization was organized by P. D. Southworth, county agent, and E. J. Jennings, of the Wisconsin Tobacco Growers' association.
The directors are Tom Connell, Samuel Lowe, J. M. Zander, J. M. Zander,
C. G. Strong. The president is Charles
Nelson and the secretary is Martin Peterson. When the warehouse arrangements are made, the growers will be able to receive the crop and take care of it.

Illinois Wool Sold.
Winnebago county farmers who placed their wool in the Illinois pool have been advised that four-fifths of the 3,500,000 pounds has been sold.
Only 325,733 pounds remain in the pool, but no settlement can be made until all the wool has been sold. The pool is the first co-operative marketing project started by the state association.

Double Blankets to the number of 4,748,330 single blankets, 355 tons of wool and 213 pounds of wool batts have been offered to date.

Did Her Question Her What It Was for? questioned the district attorney.

"Yes, and she told me it wasn't for me to know," declared the witness.
"You never once asked her why she didn't get money from her parents, did you?"

"No, I didn't. She said her father used her badly."

"Don't you think it queer that after meeting this girl only three or four times, she should be asking you for money?" demanded the district attorney.

Mrs. Minnie Henderson, wife of the defendant's brother, testified she did not believe her brother was near the room occupied by the girl during the day.

"You were busy preparing dinner and when washing dishes during the greater part of the time this girl swore that the defendant was in her room."

"Yes, I was," said the witness.

"However," I was near the stables leading up to the second floor, and when I requested Reine to call the girl, he only went part way up the stairs," added the witness.

Fred Deley, former sheriff, and P.
J. Van Pool, also testified during the trial Monday afternoon.

farm near Delavan to meet the girl they missed the train on their return to Delavan, according to the testimony. They went to the farm of Earl Henderson, brother of the defendant, near Whitewater, outside of Rock county. They remained there during the night and part of the next day.

The 14-year-old girl swore the defendant wrangled her during the day at the brother's home. The witness

Janesville Man Gets Big Catch

George W. Broese, Janesville, who, with his wife, is spending the winter in Florida is having considerable success as a fisherman around St. Petersburg. He and six other men on a yacht caught 525 pounds of fish in one day, according to the following "fish" story in the St. Petersburg Times:

Seven anglers aboard the "Yacht Casanova," Captain George T. Haines, brought in more than 525 pounds of fish, including kingfish and octopus Thursday. More than 105 amber jack and kings were pulled aboard. Charles Rhode, Patchogue, L. I. N. Y., landed a big octopus after a hard fight. Dr. C. G. Johnson, Milwaukee, won the jack pot with a 22-pound fish. Dr. F. C. Griffin of New York won second prize. The yacht fished over the coral beds 25 miles west by southwest of Solida. Plus hour. WHAT IS HAPPENING ABOUT BETTER MOVING PICTURES.

No one who has leadership in a reformation of the photodrama wants to be prudish or goody-goody on the question. Here and there is some extremist who is used as a type by the promoters of the nasty pictures. But the big fact remains that there has come over the moving picture producer, a deadly fear of censorship and extreme laws and that has caused him to advocate reform. He goes farther in the details of what he expects to accomplish than any of the people who have been protesting against the rawness and the extremes to which the sex appeal has been carried in the last few years.

Of course we need motion pictures. It has become a part of the life of the people. It is the cheapest and best form of indoor amusement. Sidney Cohen, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, says that the producer is the one with the perverted idea of what the American public wants. "The exhibition," he exclaims, "has a very limited choice in his pictures." Then he says if the exhibitor accepted all the printed matter and schemes and advice given him by the producers as to exploiting risqué pictures, "he would be in constant conflict with the penal law and spend much of his time in jail or arranging for his bail." He adds: "The exaggerated sex appeal is a sin against the common decency of the American people. The producers have misjudged the tastes and demands of the public." One picture we have recently seen in Janesville is cited.

"Take Kismet for instance. It is a great picture, dignified by the services of a great actor and developed with consummate art, but a harem scene with women nude, or apparently nude, is brought into the picture utterly without warrant of necessity and actually breaking the continuity of thought."

This is not a "reformer" talking. It is the voice of a leading manager—the head of the picture house owners' organization.

Flippant remarks, cartoons of blue law reformers, running pictures on the screens to belittle effort to clean the stage of this sex stuff, do not change the issue. Just as sure as the motion picture industry is not cleaned inside, there will come a censorship that is likely to be exaggerated. No matter what the American people may be collectively they are individually full of sentiment and have clean ideas.

The National Board of Review has been conducting a nation-wide inquiry as to the effects of certain types of motion pictures. "The result has been to oppose pictures showing constantly repeated details of crime and details of sex entanglements; use of main titles of a highly suggestive nature when the scene itself may be stupidly innocuous; unjustifiable portrayal of crime and ingenious methods of breaking the law; the insidious or unnecessary elaboration of intimate sex relationships and the suggestive treatment of such matters as to tend to bring into disrepute the otherwise legitimate presentation of sex in photodrama.

It is the aim of the National Board of Review to have these recommendations for clean pictures carried out. In this work of betterment of pictures, the National Catholic Welfare Council has prepared a "Better Motion Pictures Program" and each community is being asked to help. To "rid pictures and plays of uncleanness and immorality" is the stated object. It prefaces its program announcement with the statement that it has no idea of advocating blue laws or to seek the prohibition of legitimate entertainment on Sunday, but it adds that if the motion picture producers do not reform the photoplays the day may come when, though, we consider legal censorship only as a final recourse; whether we shall eventually invoke it as a remedy depends on the men who are now willing to turn dirt into dividends.

The day of the immoral moving picture is a hand no matter who may be hurt or what is done; it will come either by self-reform or through drastic law.

GETTING TOGETHER TO DEFEAT SOCIALISM.

All during the early part of the legislature there has been a close corporation of the non-partisan league members. No legislation has been proposed without a caucus program being made and on the floor the men who have allied themselves with this organization have supported the caucus measures to a man. It is government by caucus under this arrangement. It is the very thing against which all the "progressives" have inveighed constantly. But it makes a difference whose caucus it is. In the hands of the non-partisan league, that which was wicked and contrary to good government in the hands of others becomes a righteous thing. On the other hand, the republican majority, the men who believe in the American form of government without the socialistic trimmings, have had no organization and no caucus in the legislature. Individual members have acted as the conscience of each has dictated. But the continued introduction of socialistic legislation and the organized body behind it has made

The Savage's Salvation

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C. Thousands of wealthy persons are now booking trips to Hawaii and a good many to Tahiti and other South Sea Islands. These places, of which you seldom heard a few years ago, are now in all the prints. Numerous books are written about them. Pictures of them are painted. They are the fad.

And the romantic element in each of these places—the real center of interest—is a native population which still wears picturesque clothes and follows picturesque native customs. The civilized man seems suddenly to have discovered that the primitive man is an interesting chap, worth knowing for his own sake.

When you come to think about it, this attitude toward the Tahitians and the Hawaiians is probably the beginning of a great change in the attitude of civilization toward savagery. Only consider what the attitude toward the savage has been in the past. First he must be conquered. Every savage or primitive people on the face of the globe has been more or less shot up by some civilized nation. Then the natives must be civilized. He must be taught to farm and make change. Incidentally he has nearly always been introduced to whiskey, morphine, cocaine, tuberculosis, and various other perquisites of civilization.

The civilizing process has been almost as hard on the savage as being conquered. The classic case of the Hawaiians who were induced by the missionaries to wear clothes, with the result that they all caught cold and many of them died, is typical. I may say that almost no part of civilization has really benefited the savage. He simply isn't ready for it. His only hope of survival is to be allowed to go on being a savage in peace. And that is what, at last, the civilized man seems inclined to let him do.

It really seems to be the artist who has come to the rescue of the savage. Take the case of Tahiti. Some years ago a French painter named Gauguin went to that remote island. He stayed there and painted there. He became famous. He suddenly called the attention of the civilized world to the fact that the Tahitians were a most picturesque and beautiful people, who should be preserved as they are, like any other wonderful nature, not converted into commonplace civilized persons. Then Somerset Maugham, an English novelist, turned to the subject of the great artist, and in his tale told most effectively how the great artist, Gauguin, found beauty and peace in the tropical island. He found another artist in words, Frederick O'Brien, and wrote a book about Tahiti and neighboring islands which was one of the most popular travel books ever written. In effect all three of these artists were apostles for the savage as he is. They said, in the first place, that he is a picturesque, and interesting fellow, who is not bothering anyone, and who ought to be allowed to live his life as the rest of humanity. In the second place, these artists indicated that perhaps civilization is not such a blessed thing as it is cracked up to be—that possibly the civilized man could even learn something about the art of living from the savage. Such a thought would have been considered insane a generation ago. Today it is merely regarded as mildly heretical.

The new and thriving science of anthropology also comes to the support of the artist in this connection. Some of the anthropologists have been studying the primitive man with unusual zeal. They find that in some respects at least he may be considered the superior of the civilized man. For instance, the primitive man has a better sense of beauty. His pottery, his weavings, his dwellings, his dances, his ceremonies, are all picturesque and often of high artistic merit. In civilization the real appreciation of beauty seems to be limited to a very few. The majority of us have lost all taste. The things we use and wear, the houses we live in, our dances and ceremonies are for the most part ugly and often even grotesque.

One woman scientist, Elsie Clews Parsons, has gone still further and shown that most of the queer beliefs, customs, taboos and superstitions of primitive life, which we ridicule, survive in some form in civilization. She has shown that the hobbles of our "lively parties" are savage origins. Some of our "lively parties" are savage origins. Many of our "lively parties" are savage origins. Many of our "lively parties" are savage origins. Many of our "lively parties" are savage origins.

In a word, there is reason to suspect that we are not as far ahead of the savages as we thought we were. The savages seem to have suspected this all along. They have clung to their own way of life and rejected our civilization with the utmost determination.

An excellent example of the whole process is afforded by the Pueblo Indians of our own Southwest. The Spaniards began trying to civilize them nearly 500 years ago. They failed unmercifully for several centuries and then the Yankees took up the good work. The Pueblos staged one big revolt and drove all the white men fighters and ultimately they achieved a sort of passive resistance. It has been astonishingly successful. After four centuries of hard work by two great civilized nations, the Pueblo is in all essentials unchanged. Although a church stands in every pueblo, the Pueblo Indian still worships his primitive gods. Although a school stands there, too, he remains gloriously ignorant of books. He still weaves and weaves his own blankets, builds his own houses and hunts the wild things as his fathers did. The Pueblo in New Mexico today is just as Coronado described it in the 17th century.

Now artists have begun to flock to that vicinity, and there is a growing movement to let the Pueblo be as he is, for his own sake, and for the sake of art. The artists and the Indians get along admirably together. Both of them have a fine appreciation of color and of natural beauty. The restraint of nature and the ugliness of civilization, if they are to be saved, the artists will be the savages' salvation.

It is necessary for the friends of sound government to get together for the defeat of these measures. In this organization both members from Rock county and Riley Young, of Walworth, have conspicuous parts. The result has been the immediate slaughter of a number of the proposed laws designed to bring about conditions which have brought Dakota a chaos, and the slaying of all other such measures for defeat. That is the only way to accomplish the result: to line up solidly against the nonpartisan league program and overwhelm it at every point.

It is time to think about the garden. Seeds in stores, mail laden with seed catalogues, the barren uninviting appearance of the back lot, the sprouting grass, all tell us that it is about the season when the hoe and the spade can be dragged out and put to work.

When President Byrnes gets here it will be time to show the head of the Milwaukee road many things Janesville can have from the roads that will aid the freight shipper as well as in the passenger service.

When one looks at the backyard it appears to be time to take up the past. This sort of muck-raking should be started now and be continued until the city is cleaned up.

The potato bug is waiting impatiently for spring planting to begin.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

UNTIL SHE DIED.
Until she died we never knew
The beauty of our little God.
We'd seen the summer roses nod
And wither as the tempests blew.
Through many a spring we'd lived to see
The buds returning to the tree.

We had not felt the touch of war.
What cares had come, had lightly flown.
Our burdens we had borne alone—
The need of God we did not know.
It seemed sufficient through the days
To think and act in worldly ways.

And then she closed her eyes in sleep.
She left us for a little while.
No more our lives would know her smile.
And oh, the hurt of it went deep.
It seemed to us that we must fail
Before the anguish of it all.

Our faith, which had not known the test,
Then blossomed with its comfort sweet.
Promised that some day we should meet
And whispered to us: "He knows best."
And when our faith was glorified,
We found our faith was justified.

CONFESSIONS OF A CYNIC.

I don't believe women are dangerous if you don't take them seriously.
I see that Harding will have to appoint people to fill 100,000 jobs, and so far as I am concerned he is welcome to the papers that shed Oregon town is being run by women, but I don't know of any town that isn't.

WHAT OUR EXPERT SAYS.

Everybody is buying things figured out by efficiency experts, so we have gone and hired one and asked him to tell in a few words what is the matter with the world. He is an eminent professor and undoubtedly knows what he is talking about with the world just now is:

Too many people between the producer and the consumer.
Too much "efficiency" and not enough work.
Too many people riding on the wrong horses.
Too many wrong horses.
Too much weather and not enough climate.
Too many politicians and not enough statesmen.

Who's Who Today

President Harding's personal health will be watched closely by Dr. C. E. Sawyer, who has been chosen personal physician by the new chief executive. Officially Dr. Sawyer has been made a brigadier general in the medical corps and will be assigned to duty at the White House.

Dr. Sawyer is a native of Madison and has been the family physician of the Hardings for many years. He accompanied Harding on his strenuous campaign before election.

Dr. Sawyer was in the reserve corps of the medical corps during the war. He was connected with the medical section of the council of national defense.

As a brigadier general Dr. Sawyer will receive $6,000 a year pay and allowances. He is 42 years of age and has long been a personal friend of Mrs. Harding.

The rate of population still sticks to Indiana. Evidently it is unwilling to break away from the center of culture. —New York Evening Post.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

March 15, 1881.—Anthony and Mills will present "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the opera house tonight. Although almost everybody in town has seen this play a dozen times, it is always popular and draws a full house. There are now two mail daily between here and Healdsburg which is an improvement over the mail to Chicago as has been the system since the stage coach was laid off duty.

MARCH ONE YEARS AGO
March 15, 1900.—Edwin Mardock has left the Janesville Steam Laundry which is now owned by Albert Schaller and Frank E. Strickler. Thomas Leech was brought up in municipal court this morning for disturbing the meetings of the Sanitation Army. The Hanson Furniture factory is going to be rebuilt.

TWENTY YEARS AGO
March 15, 1900.—Peter Allen, one of the pioneers of the dairy industry here, died last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Allen, Winnebago, with whom he has made his home during the last few years. The promoters of the canning industry in this city are having a hard time finding farmers to sign up for acreage enough for the factory.

TEN YEARS AGO
March 15, 1911.—There will be a St. Patrick's Day celebration at the opera house March 17 under the auspices of the A. O. U. E.—Charles Brown, one of the pioneers of the dairy industry here, was nearly 90 years of age. Zukowsky, the boxer, appeared before the Apollo club last evening.

NOCTURNE IN A FLAT

OR
WHY, OH, WHY DO YOU SNOORE?

Will you kindly tell a perfect lady, asks one, how to cure herself of snoring? I can't tell you, but I can tell you that snoring is a very common ailment. I've tried high pillows, low pillows, power and won't power, and I guess about everything else but standing in the corner all night. My family threatens to relocate me to the tall timbers if I don't cease. Of course I am taking their word for my own fitness, never having heard myself snore. Snoring is that peculiarly charming noise produced by the flapping of the soft palate in the wind. Like the song of a siren it will drive some hearts to deeds of frenzy.

Most snorers get in their best work while breathing in part through the mouth and in part through the nose. The volume of air vibrating through the nostrils and the air currents, but experts can snore very effectively with the mouth closed.

To give a perfectly gentlemanly reply to the lady's query, the most common cause of snoring is just plain laziness. Some folks are too lazy to breathe properly when asleep. They choose the easier way, with the mouth open, because for one reason and another it is a little difficult to breathe through the nose.

When we are asleep we are relaxed. Just as we grow drowsy, the influence of a nice warm fire, and a comfortable chair and a mouthful of good food. And this relaxation particularly affects the elastic membrane which separates the nostrils from the mouth. They become engorged with blood and swell enough to impede the free passage of air through the nose.

People who snore are generally overweight, which proves beyond peradventure that they habitually eat too much. They should endeavor to lose weight, which will certainly improve their health, by indulging in daily active general exercise of one kind or another, for the sake of better circulation.

A Sweetheart at Thirty

The Story of a Woman's Transformation

CHAPTER XCV.
LOYALTY.
I talked with Toots for awhile before she went to bed. "I didn't want to come in," she told me. "I was too nervous to hear my testimony. Besides, they wouldn't let me. We're not taking her left hand from her merrit, and showed me the heavy gold band on her finger. Besides it was her engagement ring. The diamond was much too large for her finger and much too large for good taste."

Toots followed my look. "Pete bought it when he had a run of luck," she explained. "He said I could have it if he got in trouble. I guess the time's come for that."

"Oh, I hope not," I put in hastily. "I don't care," she said. "I'll get another when he's flush again."

She told me her brother was waiting for her downstairs, and after a little more talk, I went over to Francis and Toots.

"This thing is dragging slowly," Francis said, "and you look tired, so I'm going to send you home. My driver will take you up to your place, and you'll be quite safe. It's midnight now."

"But Dad—"

"I'll go back and see what I can do about him. I don't like the way he looks. His evidence was very bad. The boy isn't bad, but I'm afraid he is weak at times. That mistake about seeing Pete was an idiotic one—I'd forgive crime much sooner than stupidity."

I felt terribly depressed—but there was nothing to do but go down to the car, and allow myself to be taken in. Francis gave the driver the address, and he turned back, pretending to adjust my rug again. He switched off the light—and for a moment we were alone in the enclosed car. Francis sat up and looked at me. "I've learned over and kissed my lips lightly."

And the depression left me at once. After all, everything would be all right—Francis had changed of mind. "Don't worry," he whispered. "Go back and have a good night's sleep. I'll telephone you tomorrow afternoon."

I caught his hand and held it—then the door was closed and I was being driven slowly up the deserted, snow-covered streets.

And in spite of my worry about Dad, and the effect of all this on me, I could not be unhappy. I leaned back against the soft cushions, watching the patches of light come out of the darkness as we passed the street lamps. I belonged to Francis. He had said he was quite the most wonderful man in the world.

I slipped off my glove and watched the clear sparkle of my ring in the

PRETTY HAT FOR THE EASTER PARADE

By ELOISE.
Is the off-the-face hat here to stay? It would seem so, for it has now persisted through many seasons and is still shown among the smartest of the new modes. It is a type which the youthful face can always wear, but the older woman should shun it and cling to the hat with beams and soft lines.

Here is a very pretty and youthful little hat which will do its wearer proud in the Easter parade. It is fashioned of an embroidered satin and on the under side of the brim

Cabbage Salad—Slice the cabbage as finely as possible and add chopped peanuts, marinate with French dressing (three tablespoons oil to one tablespoon vinegar, salt and pepper) and let stand about 10 minutes. What Shall I Do?

Answered by VIRGINIA PAGE

Bouillon Cups and Cards
"Dear Miss Page: Will you tell me the use of bouillon cups—any kind of soup be served in them, and how is it eaten from them, always from a soup or dessert spoon? Have the handles any use besides ornament? And when calling on a stranger, should one first tell one's name? (For one's card is not left until the end of the call, is it?) And why should one leave two of one's husband's cards?—An Old-Fashioned Housewife."

Bouillon cups are properly used only for bouillon, a clear soup; cream soups should be served in soup plates. The bouillon should be taken from the cup with a bouillon spoon, which is rather small and round-bowled, instead of the soup spoon which is used with the plates for cream soups. The handles are, after all, only ornaments which are not supposed to be used; although some people consider it is permissible to drink the last drop from every angle. This hat is made from every angle. This hat is made from every angle.

When calling upon a stranger in the neighborhood you should introduce yourself as pleasantly as possible when she greets you at the door. "I am Mrs. Blank. I live just a few doors from you and wanted to welcome you to our neighborhood or press whatever words to that effect come

USEFUL BIRD CITIZENS

PURPLE MARTIN.
Size—Body about two inches shorter than robin, but wing spread gives illusion of larger size.
Habitat—General. Nest, (male) shining blue-black; (female) blue-black above, grayish below. MALE. Entire body, iridescent blue-black. Wings and tail duller. FEMALE. Upperparts, breast, blue-black, duller than male. WINGS and tail, bluish gray. In flight, resembles the female. Male following summer, like male, but with bluish gray and scattering of white on underparts. Dances throughout the United States, except along Pacific coast. Winters in Brazil.
What has become of the Martins? A keen-sighted bird and no self-respecting New England carpenter would think of calling a house finished until the Martin box was placed away back in Colonial times the settlers told us that the Indians also loved the bird and set up gourds in the crotch of their tent poles to entice them to nest.
The farmer encouraged the Martin as a neighbor because of all the birds he was most valuable as a persistent insect hunter and required no return of fruit or grain. He knew that so long as he was about so marauding hawk would dare molest his chickens. The Indian, being interested in nothing but agriculture nor poultry, paid him the most sincere compliment of all, for he wanted Sir Martin's company for his own sake, because the bird signified to him all that he himself hoped to be.
The Purple Martin is peculiar to the New World and ranges from the dwelling woods of the Atlantic to the luxuriant forests of the tropics. He is often likened to a knight of days of old, and when the sun glints upon his iridescent plumage, it certainly resembles a coat of mail. And like the knight, Sir Martin never takes up the gage of battle without reason nor lays it down in dishonor.
A blessing to the farmer because of his untiring warfare upon the injurious garden and field insects; courageous to a high degree; friendly and confident; what more could you ask of a bird except song, and even this he has to a limited degree, his persistence

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.
Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am keeping company with a young man four years older than myself—I love him dearly and have reasons to believe that he cares for me the same way, but he never seems to care to be seen with me in public. He never wants to be with us when we go together, and when we go riding or take walks it is always after dark or just at dusk. He says that his reason for this is that he would rather go alone with me.
Do you think that it is right for me to go with him under these conditions?
Recently in a lecture I heard that a girl should keep her boy friend in doubt as to whether she loved him or not. What is your opinion of that?
WONDERING.
You must judge the young man by the way he treats you. If you and he are alone together. Does he respect you and love you? If so, he probably begrudges every moment that he cannot be with you, and he is not a selfish, because he ought to entertain you by taking you places, and should not expect you to entertain him every time.
Some young men like to "snoop." They are unscrupulous and take a girl's love and kisses without giving anything in return except a quantity of insincere love-making. They do not dream of taking the girl to theaters and dances, but have another girl who is less generous with her demonstrations of affection and more respected.
If the young man is selfish and goes to see you for kisses, drop him. But if he enjoys your conversation, laughs at your doll remarks, and shows no sign of lack of respect for him as a friend. Tell him frankly that he is not fair to you and that you want to go places the way other girls do.
Yes, I think it is better for a girl to keep a man in doubt as to whether or not she loves him. This is a fine theory, but a difficult thing for many women to carry out. It is a woman's nature to be demonstrative, and many cases bring great suffering. A man likes to feel that he is pursuing, and not being pursued.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 15 years old. A short time ago I had a boy friend whom I liked very much. He left town. After he was gone I decided I did not want to stay home and wait for him and so I began going with other fellows. Now I want him back.
What would you advise me to do in this matter?
WORRIED.
You made your decision when you dropped your boy friend in order to go with others. Do not try to get him back.

The Letters of Tessie and Joe

DEAR TESSIE:
Business is still pale and sickly and I've only sold four cases of Daisy Canned Soups this week and three of the orders have been cancelled already. I hope and pray the grocers in this so-called territory haven't started the habit of testing the stuff they buy. If there's anything I hate it's a suspicious nature. But every cloud has its silver lining, even if you have to be rained on first before you find it out. And today I read that Germany can only pay thirty-six billion dollars in war indemnities instead of the fifty-five billions asked by the allies. Imagine the shame of that, Tessie! Suppose somebody with a hard luck story asked you for $55,000,000,000 (that means the same thing, don't stop to figure it out, because I know anything over three figures gives you a headache)—anyway, suppose you were asked for $55,000,000,000 and felt obliged to say, "I'm sorry, but $55,000,000,000 is the best I can do just now." Wouldn't it make you feel cheap?

So when I heard about Germany being down to her last $50,000,000,000 I realized that probably nobody will ever be able to tempt me with that, and it cheered me up till supper, which was so bad that nothing could have cheered me up after that except the death of the so-called chief of his reputed hotel. Not that I'm fussy about my meals—you ought to know that, after some of yourchow that I've put away without so much as a word—but I do like my food cooked right and I like it served right and I like plenty of it, and outside of that I never give eating a thought.

Love, and keep down expenses. JOE.

"You mean it Durand hasn't whistled in here yet?" the sergeant asked. "Take me to your calaboose. I've got one or two things to tell the judge about this guy Durand."

The officer dropped his grumbling complaint to a whisper. "Whist! by. Take a straight shot from a gun that knows. Beat it out of town. Get where the long arm of—of a friend of ours—can't reach yuh. Yuh may be a straight guy, but that won't help yuh. Yuh'll be framed the same as yuh was a green-goods man or a roper or a porch-climber. He's a revengeful enemy if ever there was."

"You mean that Durand—"

"I'm not naming names," the officer interrupted doggedly. "I'm telling yuh something for your good. Take it or leave it."

"Thanks. I'll leave it. This is a free country, and no man livin' can drive me away," answered Clay promptly. "Ouch. I'm sore. Give me a lift, sergeant."

They had the companion to the feet. He took a limping step or two. Every move was torture to his outraged flesh.

"Can you get me a taxi? That is, if you're sure you don't want me in your calaboose?" the constable asked, leaning against the wall.

"We'll let yuh go this time," Durand told him for me that again some time—and hand him my thanks personal for this first-class wallopin'!"

From the bruised, bleeding face there beamed again the smile of a victor. Physically he had been well beaten, but in spirit he was still the man on horseback.

Presently he eased himself into a taxi as comfortably as he could. "Home, James," he said faintly.

"Where?" asked the driver.

"The nearest hospital," explained Clay. "I'm sore. I let the doctors worry over me for a while. Much obliged to both of you gentlemen. I always did like the Irish. Friend Jerry is an exception. The cab disappeared. The sergeant spoke the comment that was in the mind of them both.

"He's the best single-barreled sport that ever I met in this man's town."

Not a whisper out of the ruy and his mouth was a pulp. Game as they come. Did you see that spark of the devil in his eye, and him not fit to crawl into the cab? If I ever there's a man to man him and Jerry, I'll be the best rough-and-tumble fighter on the island."

"Jerry's the best rough-and-tumble fighter on the island. I wouldn't put him first till after him and this guy had met alone in a locked room. Strong Mike."

"Strong Mike. No report on this rough-house, mind yuh."

"Sur, Mike."

CHAPTER IX. — NEW YORK. — Beatrice Up Stage

If you vision Clay as a man of battles and violent death you don't see him as he saw himself. He was a peaceful citizen from the law-abiding West. It was not until he had been flung into the whirlpool of New York that violent and melodramatic misadventures befell this innocent. The Wild East had trapped him into a world adventure foreign to his nature.

This was the version of himself that he conceived to be true and the one he tried to interpret to Bee Whitford when he emerged from the hospital after two days of seclusion and presented himself before her.

It was characteristic of Beatrice that when she looked at his battered face she asked no questions. After the first startled glance one might have thought from her expression that he habitually wore one back eye, one swollen lip, one cauliflower ear and a strip of gauze around his cheek. The dark-lashed eyes lifted from him to take on a business-like directness. She rang for the man.

"Have the runabout brought round at once, Stevens. I'll drive myself," she gave orders.

With the light case that looked like a strong box she carried into the Park. Neither she nor Clay talked. Both of them knew that an explanation of his appearance was due her and in the meantime neither cared to force with small talk. She watched without appearing to do so the slender girl in white at the wheel. Her motions delighted him. There was a very winning charm in the softly curving contours of her face. In the flower-like and precious quality in her personality which lay back of her boyish comradeship.

She drew up to look at some pond lilies, and they talked about them for a moment, each watching her direct eyes questioned him frankly.

He painted with a light brush the picture of his adventure into Bohemia. The details he filled in whimsically. In the picturesque phrasing, "I got into a little bit of a scrape on his velvetous. That Son of the Stars he did full justice. Jerry Durand and Kitty Mason were accessories."

Even while her face bubbled with mirth at his story of the improvised tango that had wrecked the Son Siren, the quick young eyes of the girl were taking in the compelling devil-may-care charm of Lindsay. Battered though he was, the splendid vigor of the man still showed in a certain tigerish concentration. No young Greek god's head could have risen more superbly from the buck-tanned column of his neck than did this bronzed one.

He told her that Mr. Lindsay of Arizona was among those present. Beatrice said smiling.

"I was given the dance," he agreed, and his gray eyes met hers.

Since she was a woman, one phase of his story needed expansion for Miss Whitford. She made her comment carelessly while she adjusted the napkin on the speaker's plate.

"When you happened to meet some one you knew down there, you did say you knew the girl, didn't you?"

"We were on the same train out of Denver. I not acquainted with her."

Miss Whitford asked no more questions. But Clay could not quite let the matter stand so. He wanted her to justify him to her and for what he had told her the story of Kitty Mason and Durand.

He did this to draw any criticism of apparent flattery.

"I couldn't let him hypnotize that little girl from the country, could I?" he asked.

"I suppose not." Her whole face began to bubble with laughter in the way he liked so well. "But you'll be a busy knight errant if you under take to right the wrongs of every girl in New York. It's a double standard near the corner of her mouth. "Of course she's pretty."

"Well, yes. She is right pretty."

"Describe her to me."

"I made a lasting impression. Out of his tangled sentences she picked up some fragments. "...blooms like a cherokee rose...sort like a kitten..."

"I'm glad to see you changing. That excuses my indiscretion," the girl said with a gleam of friendly malice.

To be continued.

When former Vice President Marshall was a struggling lawyer in Indiana a book agent entered his office

"W-h-y, this is the Bible," explained the agent.

The agent explained he was offering the Bible.

"I know," said Marshall, "but who is the author?"

Gathering up his samples, the book agent retreated to the door. Then with one hand on the knob, turned around and blithering idiot, "You pin-beated fool and blithering idiot, it's the Bible."

"Mother, have you noticed how changed father is lately? He's cross most all the time."

"He isn't cross," my dear; he's merely suffering from incometaxitis, a disease which comes at this time of the year."

"I notice that Agnes doesn't go around boring other people with her ailments as she used to. She's cured her completely."

"A doctor?"

"Oh, no. She was telling this man some of her symptoms when he remarked that she was a law many of these things afflict people as they grow old. Since then she has held her tongue about them."

THIS GIRL MADE A NEAT PIN CUSHION FROM CANDY BOX

(Handicraft for Girls)

Often you get cardboard boxes from the downtown shops. Don't throw them away, because you can make from them attractive articles for your room, and they will give you something to do with your hands' in idle moments.

The writer has a young friend who made a most charming pin cushion from a candy box. Only the box itself is used, and it is stuffed with wool.

The top is covered with a piece of blue silk. Around the outside of the box the girl has "lacked" with thread a strip of silk to match. To finish off the piece my friend bought a half yard of tiny silk flowers at a downtown shop, and these she pinned around the edge of the box, thus hiding her stitches.

Box tops are often unsightly things, but they can be made very attractive by covering them with wall paper. This same friend of mine has two hat boxes she fixed in that way. One is covered with wall paper of a violet design and the other is covered with rose-patterned paper.

Cut a broad strip of paper to sit around the body of the box, and a narrow one to go around the side of the lid. Lay the cover of the box on the wall paper and cut a piece to fit. Paste may be used in putting on the paper.

A common shoe box is not the most attractive thing in the world, either, but it can be made quite presentable by covering it with chintz in a dower pattern. Wall paper will do instead of cloth. To fit the chintz to the box lay it on a large piece of the cloth and cut the pieces to fit. Cut out the corners so that the cloth will glue evenly to the box.

Old English Recipe for Catarrh, Catarrh Deafness and Head Noises.

If you know of one who is troubled with Catarrh Deafness, head noises or ordinary catarrh, out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer, perhaps from total deafness. In England and Scotland for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment. Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear which frequently means total deafness or other serious results. The following formula is a safe and effective remedy for the catarrh of the middle ear. It is a constitutional treatment and should be used in conjunction with a healthy diet and a moderate exercise. The following formula is a safe and effective remedy for the catarrh of the middle ear. Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Epsom salt (magnesium sulfate). Take this home and add to it 1/2 pint of water and a little granulated sugar. Stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Cleared nostrils should enable breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Paralytic use in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a tonic action that helps to obtain the desired results. The preparation is easy to make, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh or head noises or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.

Billy Whiskers

Mr. Treat said that they would soon learn all about the wreck in Whiskers and his trained monkeys that day gave a full account of the wrecked railroad train and told how the monkeys and his trained monkeys had escaped. In another place there was a big announcement offering a reward of twenty-five hundred dollars for the safe capture of the runaway train.

Mr. Treat, without telling any of the family, at once drove to the nearest telephone office and wired the manager that the lost animals were all safe at Cloverleaf farm.

The following morning the circus man and Mike and Jim appeared on the scene.

It was soon arranged that Billy's engagement was considered closed. Owing to the lateness of the season and the serious wreck, the show would at once go into their winter quarters. The only difficulty was to induce the monkeys to go. It was finally decided to build on a big lumber wagon a strong removable cage. When finished, Billy, to whom the scheme had been explained, jumped in at once and the monkeys followed. At the other end of the cage two of the bars had been fixed so that one of them could be dropped down and the other raised up, thus making a hole big enough for Billy to get through.

When all the monkeys were in, Mike and Jim made the opening for Billy and out he popped before the next knew what was up. They then made an awful outcry and tore

Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently. It does not color the scalp, is not greasy and does not rub off. Heavy Costs Cause Disbanding of Central State League

Copyright 1920 by Geo. McManus.

REQUEST TRACTORS TO AID PLANS TO KEEP GAME ALIVE

The Central State Baseball league, comprising six cities in Central Wisconsin, has passed into history. At a meeting held Sunday, according to Directors Farnsworth of the Port Atkinson club who was in Janesville Monday, it was decided to disband the league for this season.

High costs of conducting the league are given as the reasons for dropping it.

Paid title salaries.

"Several of the clubs," declared Farnsworth, "sped out ridiculous prices for players and as a result these clubs are in no financial position to resume this year. Port Atkinson went slowly to its expense so that we are ready to start again."

It is said in baseball circles that some of the Central league teams were in the habit of paying as high as $30 and $50 a Sunday for out-of-town players.

It is said that the league was on Sunday this year bound to have a boomerang effect, it is stated.

Six Cities Hit.

The teams affected by the decision are Janesville, Watertown, Waupun, Jefferson and Port Atkinson. Farnsworth and Farnsworth, president and Farnsworth, are especially named as having paid out large sums in the race to get first class players last year.

Some of these clubs, like Port Atkinson, Jefferson and Waupun, may continue as town teams, but that matter still is to be decided. Director Farnsworth stated Tuesday morning that the Central State league is not to be reorganized, entering the Central State league, such cities as Madison, Stoughton and Edgerton. He will represent his organization at a meeting of the Tri-County to be held in Madison next Sunday, he announced.

Want New League.

The Port officials, however, consider that they have a first organization. Farnsworth was in Janesville Monday to confer with Manager George Peirce of the Port Atkinson team, formerly the Samson team, to see what could be done to bring some new clubs into the league. Farnsworth is in charge of the Central State. Nothing will be done along this line for the present at least, it was reported.

Dempsey-Card Bout for U. S., Rickard States

New York.—The world's championship match between Georges Carpentier and Jack Dempsey will not be held in Europe, but on the American continent, according to Rickard, promoter Tuesday. He was expected to give his answer some time this week to promoters interested in holding the bout in Canada. He said he had received word that Carpentier would arrive in the United States May 1 to start training for the bout.

SMITH, OUTCLASSED, FORCED BRENNAN AFTER FIGHT WAS IN

Havana.—Sergeant Ray Smith, although hopelessly outclassed by Bill Brennan here Monday night, was ready to continue the fight after he had been knocked out. Brennan, who had been knocked out in the first round, was brought back to the ring. Smith, who had been sent to the floor after two minutes of fighting in the third round, rose at the count of nine and rushed at his opponent. He was stopped by his seconds, however, and led to the corner. The fight was fast and furious from beginning to end, but while Smith forced the fighting, he never had a chance. Brennan landing straight lefts to the face almost at will and in the clinches, pounding him hard in the stomach.

BASEBALL TIPS

New York.—Bob Meusel, utility man, has been indefinitely suspended by T. L. Huston, part owner of the New York Americans. Huston is reported to have been in his suspension.

Boston.—Fred Nicholson and Billy Southworth, players acquired by the Boston Braves from Pittsburgh, have reported for training.

Hot Springs, Ark.—Herb Pennock, veteran pitcher, reported to the Boston American league baseball club at their spring training camp Tuesday. Manager Duffy has received no word from Pennock, who is holding out for increased salaries.

EIGHT CITIES ENTER WISC. VALLEY LEAGUE

Wausau, Wis.—Eight cities have entered baseball games in the Wisconsin Valley Baseball league which was formulated here under the direction of A. G. Kjerin, mayor and president of the league. Judge Byron E. Park of Stevens Point was named arbitrator. The cities to enter teams in the league follow: Tomahawk, Merrill, Marshfield, Stratford, Schofield, Altona, Stevens Point, and Wisconsin Rapids. Delegates from Wausau and Marshfield attended the meeting but declined to enter teams from these cities.

Each team will be permitted to sign twelve players and a manager. The by-laws of the league will be drawn up at the next meeting subject to the call of the president.

INDIANAPOLIS TEAM IS PRACTICALLY NEW

Indianapolis.—Practically a new team will represent Indianapolis in the American Association this year. First baseman, Catcher and Shortstop, Schrieber are the only Indians retained from last year's club. Walter Rabe is the only regular outfielder kept by Manager Hendricks. Five veteran pitchers and one catcher remain with the team.

New York.—Ed "Strangler" Lewis, will meet John Pesek, of Ravenna, Neb., in a finish bout here April 4.

BRINGING UP FATHER

BASEBALL TRIAL TO BE CARRIED OUT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago.—Judge Wm. J. Dever Monday refused to comply with a motion by the state that the trial of Chicago White Sox players and others indicted for the alleged throwing of the 1919 World Series be taken off the court calendar. He ordered another hearing for next Thursday when it is believed a date for trial will be set.

Attorneys for the defense moved that an immediate trial be held Thursday and Judge Dever said that he would announce his decision on the matter later. Claude Williams, Bud Weaver, Oscar Felsch and Swede Risberg were in court. Eddie Cicotte, Bill Burns, Joseph J. Sullivan, Rachel Brown, Chick Gandil and Abe Attel were represented by counsel.

Judge Barrett, American league attorney, in pleading for a postponement said the prosecution had learned that "Eddie Cicotte, Claude Williams and Joe Jackson, who confessed to the grand jury, would not be available as witnesses." Consequently, he said, the state could not obtain convictions on the evidence it now had and would have to have time to seek additional data.

ODDS FAVOR WILSON TO WHIP O'DOWD

New York.—Odds of 7 to 5 are offered by early bettors that Johnny Williams, middleweight champion, will defeat Mike O'Dowd, former champion, when they meet in Madison Square Garden Thursday night.

MANDELL RULES FAVORITE WITH LOCAL BOOSTERS

With Chicago fight fans taking enough interest in the opening card of the Janesville Athletic club to start betting on their favorite, Johnny Mandell, to defeat Sammy Mandell, and a challenge Monday from Walter Grejcek, bantamweight champion of Wisconsin, to meet the winner of the bout here on the next card of the club, things are beginning to liven up considerably in an interesting discussion.

Grejcek already is credited with a win over Hagen. Hagen has lost to Joe Mandell, brother of Sammy, and Sammy has lost to Grejcek. This would seem to give the idea that Grejcek is going to meet Grejcek one of these days.

Mandell Favorite.

"Smiling Sam" is Janesville's favorite for the stipend. While he realizes that he has a real battle on his hands, he appears mighty confident. He started working out here at the Janesville Monks' gymnasium and looked far better than even a week ago. In four rounds with Joe, he won handily with green the shadow of a shade, although Joe is not in the best of condition right now. He laid in a wicked left, followed with a mill of right jabs, covered and ducked to perfection, was flashy on his toes, kept a constantly clear head and had a clever way of always getting his feet with telling precision.

Hagen Packs Wallop.

Joe has posted his brother Sam on what Hagen holds in store. Interviewed Monday, the elder brother said:

"I must give Hagen credit for a terrific fight because I was up against it myself. But I believe that Sammy can stop him."

Sam has little to say except to smile and declare that he will show the fans in the ring. And then he gets right to work skipping the rope, putting the weights on shadows and looking like a cat in the ring of condition and is already able to make the weight.

Dupe on Hagen.

Coming back to Hagen, he has never been knocked out and is given the name of a clean scrapper. His manager, Ike Bernstein, claims a big record for him in the short time he has been in the ring. He met Stanley Kovacs, Frankie Juma, Dickie McFarland, Tommy Bright, Sammie Ploger, Johnny Ritchie, Joe Dillon and Jimmy Kelly.

The rest of the fighters are working hard. Myers has practically given up of his red and his wind is coming back strong.

The special notice sent out by the Janesville Athletic club that women are permitted to attend seems to have taken a hit. From reports of the officers of the organization, a good number of women will be seen at the shows.

With the high school basketball season over, a challenge Monday from Walter Grejcek, bantamweight champion of Wisconsin, to meet the winner of the bout here on the next card of the club, things are beginning to liven up considerably in an interesting discussion.

"I must give Hagen credit for a terrific fight because I was up against it myself. But I believe that Sammy can stop him."

Sam has little to say except to smile and declare that he will show the fans in the ring. And then he gets right to work skipping the rope, putting the weights on shadows and looking like a cat in the ring of condition and is already able to make the weight.

Dupe on Hagen.

Coming back to Hagen, he has never been knocked out and is given the name of a clean scrapper. His manager, Ike Bernstein, claims a big record for him in the short time he has been in the ring. He met Stanley Kovacs, Frankie Juma, Dickie McFarland, Tommy Bright, Sammie Ploger, Johnny Ritchie, Joe Dillon and Jimmy Kelly.

The rest of the fighters are working hard. Myers has practically given up of his red and his wind is coming back strong.

It Seems Needless to say to you—that I have the largest selection of Real Quality Cloth in the City. Most of the people know that I always have.

The selection of patterns this season is particularly good, and mostly Worsteds, the kind that holds the press. I also have a fine line of Serges, Cheviots, Cassimeres and Scotchies in all new shades and designs.

—The Price—

is from $10.00 to $15.00 lower than my last season's prices, and I was always under the other fellow's price all through the year. Understand that I am not enthrusing over low prices and cheap goods—but I am on low prices and Quality Goods—On the Perfect Fits—The Superb Workmanship and the Guaranteed Linings that I am turning out.

—I Am—

I believe; the only clothing merchant who marks his goods in plain figures and sells at one price to everybody, treat 'em all alike. There are some who delight in beating down a merchant's price; and after beating the price down they are the ones who usually get stung.
